If the Lords succeeded at first the coast their future home, and where they hope to prosecute with profit the silk and tea-producing business, has animated our foot-hill people and stirred some of our large land owners to offer them free lands on which to settle, while there is a strife would be compelled to undergo a second tender of the measure already rejected. The first results of this action will touch all interests, and jeopardize not only themselves and their privi-leges, but also the peace of the great towns and the mainte-nance of law and order throughout the country. Above all, between localities as to which shall be benefitted by their pres-

At the first thought it seems singular that Japanese should give us the go by on their way to California: but it has doubtless been accom plished by the energy of American officials in Japan, assisted largely by the Prussian gentlemen who accompanied the first emigration of families. The climate, capabilities of the soil, laws, and particularly the liberal grants of lands to actual settlers, have been made clear to them. Compared with California, we may not be able to make to the Japanese so liberal offers, but can we not influence emigration from the South Pacific? The frequency with which coffins are carried through our streets, by night as well as by day, together with the statements of unusual mortality among natives upon the other islands, tell us, only too plainly, of the rapid decrease of the true capital of this or of any country-its agricultural laborers. The most important question now arises for solution : How are we to supply our labor market? No plan has yet been carried out but what is open to objections. Any plan to be pursued in the future should be as simple as possible, one which may be laid before this or any community with ample proof that the immigrants are not the dupes of designing men, as is too often the case with schemes proposed and carried out under the title of " Immigration," "Bonded labore," and "Apprentice Acts," upon which enlightened communities are beginning to look with much distrust and

Now that natives have been procured from Manahiki and found to be susceptible of assimilation with Hawaiians, the solution of this difficulty can be accomplished. Let a bona fide immigration be initiated to the end that they may be induced to come to these islands as actual settlers, free from contract or other obligation than to become industrious laborers and citizens, with a knowledge of, and a willingness to abide by our laws. This we know to have been the idea of a large majority of those who supported Mr. Wilder's bill in the Assembly, under which the voyage of the Mauna Loa was undertaken. Let the sum then appropriated, or such balance as now remains, be expended in paying the passage of such natives as may choose to emigrate to these islands, and in locating them at or near our agricultural centres. on any unoccupied lands free of charge, as long as they may remain on them. A thousand more like these will not be too many.

The Government owes it to the planters that an effort to this end should be made, and at the earliest practicable moment. And just here we wish to raise the question as to the propriety of making planters pay an additional or special tax for the introduction of bonded laborers or immigrants, in the form of passage money, as has been the custom. No one will question the fact that our sugar interest is the predominant one, and upon its success hangs the prosperity of every individual in the Kingdom; consequently, why should not every person assist in its support? In other words, all expenses incurred for the introduction of labor should be paid for out of the common treasury, which can be done without an increase of present rates of taxation. Natives thus placed can make their own bargains with planters, and self interest will prompt the planter in arranging terms so that the laborer shall be satisfied. The first term of service should be short, that the laborer's initiation to the manners, customs and wants of their masters should

But while this system of transferring free immigrants from Southern Polynesia should be established, the way should not be left closed against the introduction of laborers from any and every country where they can be procured. Laborers are wanted, and the united efforts of Government, planters, and others, cannot bring too many. The Political Struggle in Eng-

The Mails, Steam and Railroads. If any one has doubted the fact that steam annihilates time and space, and that the Continental Railroad would bring even this isolated group nearer to the great commercial centers of the old world, there is no room now for further doubt. The steamer arrived here at six o'clock A. M., on the 29th of June landing New York papers of June 12th-17 days old, and San Francisco papers of the 19th-10 days old. London papers of May 29th were also received-just 30 days old. Letters of June 10th from New York, 19 days old, and a telegram dated Queenstown, Ireland, June 17th, 12 days old, -were also received. These are some of the changes which steam and the telegraph are creating, drawing closer to us home associations and connections, and the stirring scenes of fatherland. It seems strange to us in central Polynesia, to be reading New York papers only twenty days old, and London opinions of new and passing events uttered but 30 days ago. This shortening of space gives to the wideawake merchant greater advantages than he had before, and the opportunity to do a larger and, if autious, a more profitable business.

The trains on the Continental Railroad now run regularly each day, and are provided with superb sleeping cars, of the new Pullman patent, which are said to surpass those formerly in use. Everything that can tend to the comfort of travelers is being done, and ladies and even invalids can now travel by rail as comfortably as by steamer. the latest and most authentic data, the time required to make the trips, allowing for no stoppages or detentions, is six days and six hours, at a cost for passage money of $130 in gold, to which should be added at least $20 for meals and extra charges for sleeping cars.

The steamers via Panama run three times month, and carry many passengers, as may be seen by the following items from the San Francisco papers of June 1st : Golden City sailed for Panama this morning, carrying 311

assengers and $784,485 in treasure.

The steamer Arizona sailed from New York, to-day, with 50 passengers for California and 1,126 tons freight. The charge for passage by them is as follows first cabin $177; second cabin $152; steerage $50. The railroad carries emigrants from New York to Sacramento for $75. It is said that the "stroke oar" of the Amer-

can boat, in the race between the Harvard and Yale boat clubs, will be handled by a young Hawaiian, a native of Hilo, and brother of the Lieutenant Governor of Hawaii. The position assigned to him is considered the most responsible of the four oarsmen, as the others are guided by the movements of the "strokeoarsman." and if his nerves or courage fail, the race is lost. Hawaii, therefore, has an interest in this contest, and may some day take part in an interna-

THE "FOURTH."-The ninety-third anniversary of American Independence bids fair to be a very quiet one. So far as known the parade of the " Good Templars," and the race between the boats Cara Bell and Dauntless, will be the only features of the day, even of the Charge, doubtless accounts for the apathy shown. All that is needed to start a celebration is for some one to take the initiative. We have heard of preparations being made upon the other islands where ministers and other officials are unknown.

THE FRENCH LEGATION.-We have to note the rival by the Idaho of His Ex. Mons. P. Bollieu, who is under appointment as Commissioner and Consul General of France, and as successor of Mons. Beranger, who has been transferred by his government to another consulate, and leaves to-day in the steamer. During his residence here of two years, Mons. Beranger has gained the respect of the foreign residents, and carries with him the good wishes of all.
